

FORGOTTEN MISSIONARY HEROES

by
L. Duane Brown, Ph.D.

Table of Content

Chapter		Page
	Foreword / Introduction .....	v
1	Samuel J. Mills: The Instigator of American Foreign Missions .....	1
2	John Williams: The Apostle of the South Seas .....	8
3	Elisha L. Abbott: Creator of the Indigenous Policy .....	15
4	John Mason Peck: America's First Home Missionary .....	20
5	Henry Obookiah: Crusader of Hawaiian Missions .....	27
6	Titus Coan: Missionary to Paradise .....	32
7	Narcissa Prentiss Whitman: Pioneer Woman Missionary .....	38
8	James and Joyce Garlow: Modern Missionary Heroes .....	42

Foreword / Introduction

Only the Lord knows the number, the names and the contribution missionaries have made to the cause of Christ. While the church, past and present, may forget them, God does not! He knows and will reward the success and their sufferings.

This book lists a few of these choice servants of Christ. These are researched and reported because their ministries went beyond their own fields of service. They all caught the vision of using the nationals, training them, equipping them to do the work of the ministry. The indigenous policy does indeed work!

Two hundred years have gone by since William Carey launched the modern missionary movement in 1792. The church of Jesus Christ must be ever grateful for this history and heritage of world-wide missions. The goal of this book is to remind God's people of this and to stimulate fresh enthusiasm for missions.

L. Duane Brown, Ph.D.
Parsippany, New Jersey